(Mid-November to early April: To ski resorts and hotels in Kutchan/Niseko)

by Car

Surrounded by Mt. Yotei, also known as “Ezo Fuji,” and Niseko Annupuri, the main peak of the Niseko mountain range, Kutchan is a town where tourism and agriculture are thriving. Also known as a ski sanctuary called “Saint Moritz of the East,” the entire region is visited by tourists from all over the world for long-term stays. Accordingly, know-how on serving foreign visitors has been accumulated, and accommodation facilities and restaurants offer excellent services. In summer, comfortable meetings can be held in a refreshing climate and various activities can be enjoyed.

Activities & attractions

Ski resorts

The ski resorts of Kutchan and Niseko are commendable for their magnificent scenery, excellent snow quality, and heavy snowfall. Powder snow accumulates on the plain between the Niseko mountain range and Mt. Yotei, while a high volume of snowfall of moderate humidity due to the location near the Sea of Japan, sustain these world-class snow resorts.

Penthouse condo

Due to the large number of long-stay visitors, there are many condominiums with spacious floor plans in the town, where it is possible to hold small meetings and parties while enjoying the beautiful scenery.

SOMOZA

Opened in 2017 by creative director Shouya Grigg, SOMOZA is a complex facility that integrates a gallery, shop, and restaurant in an old private house relocated from Tochigi Prefecture. Exhibitions and workshops can be held in a space radiating the appeal of culture, tradition, and nature of Hokkaido and Japan.

Activities & attractions

Rafting

The Shiribetsu River, which flows through Kutchan and Niseko, is one of the clearest rivers in Japan and carries a large volume of water, making it an ideal field for playing in the river. Rafting is the most popular activity, providing a thrilling experience in the torrent of the thawing season. Summer allows slow and fun rafting. Professional guide companies offer numerous tours.

Activities & attractions

Potatoes

Potato flowers blooming all over the ground are a summer feature of Kutchan. The most frequently found variety is “Danshaku,” and high-quality potatoes are grown due to the large temperature difference between day and night. On some farms in the town, you can experience farm work such as digging up potatoes.

Activities & attractions

Japanese sake Niseko

Niseko Shuzo, which was established in 1916, is a sake brewery where the focus is on “high-quality water, air and environment as well as undiluted sake that is not adjusted for alcohol content by adding water.” Snowmelt from the Niseko Weiss Mountains and spring water from Mt. Yotei are used in the production process. A local sake made from Hokkaido rice also serves as a popular gift.

The town name “Niseko” is said to have originated from the Ainu language words “nisey-ko-an,” meaning “cliff, heading, river.” In this town one can enjoy wonderful natural scenery, including Mt. Yotei and the Niseko mountain range, various activities, and an appeal that changes with the four seasons. In 2013, Niseko Town was selected by the Japanese Government as an “environmental model city” where pioneering efforts are made to realize a low-carbon society. It was also selected as an “SDGs future city” in 2018 based on the local government’s efforts to achieve the sustainable development goals.

In Sapporo, the capital of Hokkaido with a population of approximately 1.97 million, efforts have always been made to develop creative content while taking advantage of its perfect combination of magnificent nature and urban convenience. As a legacy of the G8 Hokkaido Toyako Summit of 2008, the city launched Japan's first MICE Service System that promotes environmentally friendly practices at MICE events. In 2015, the city was quick to use the Global Destination Sustainability Index (GDS-Index) to measure its sustainability performance as a tourism destination. Vigorous efforts have been under way to make Sapporo a sustainable destination. Sapporo has been chosen by numerous organizers as an international MICE destination where new value and connections are created thanks to its easy accessibility from across Japan and elsewhere, various unique venues, and popularity as a tourist destination.

Okurayama Ski Jump Stadium

Sapporo is an advanced city where numerous international sports competitions have been held throughout the year since it staged Asia's first Winter Olympics in 1972. The Okurayama Ski Jump Stadium served as a venue of the Winter Olympics and presently also houses the Sapporo Olympic Museum on its premises. The stadium hosts many international competitions, and popular MICE programs offered there include ski jumping competitions in summer.

It also serves as a venue for the Pacific Music Festival (PMF), known as one of the world's three largest educational music festivals, and for the Sapporo City Jazz festival. The park has a facility where closed-door banquets can be held. The outdoor museum there, known as the Sculpture Garden, is the perfect place for various activities, including snowshoe walking in winter.

Designed by the world-renowned sculptor Isamu Noguchi, Moerenuma Park was developed as a 188.8-hectare urban park by greening a landfill site. It has gained attention both in Japan and abroad for its environmental initiatives, including a snow-powered cooling system introduced at the iconic Glass Pyramid. The restaurant on the first floor of the pyramid, L'enfant Qui Reve, has served as the venue of banquets for U.N. and international governmental conferences.

Activities & attractions

As the commercial capital of Hokkaido, Otaru supported the economy of Hokkaido in pre-war years. It thrived as herring fishery prospered and hosted kitamae-bune merchant ships, which laid the foundation for development, following a path of prosperity as the cornerstone of distribution in Hokkaido—distribution which forms part of an industrial modernization story connecting coal mines in the Sorachi region, ironworks and steel mills in Muroran, and the port of Otaru (known as Tan-Tetsu-Ko (Coal, Steel, Railways, and Ports) on the Japan Heritage List). Otaru was booming to such an extent that novelist Takiji Kobayashi once wrote, “Otaru is like the heart of Hokkaido.” The Ironai area, where branch offices of the Bank of Japan and other financial institutions as well as trading companies (Mitsui & Co. and Mitsubishi Corporation) were located, has buildings that convey the history of the city's development. Some of the buildings are available as unique venues. After a drive of approximately 25 minutes from Otaru one reaches Yoichi Town. Agriculture, particularly fruit cultivation, and fishing are key industries in this town where efforts are also made to promote wine tourism.

Otaru Canal

The Otaru Canal, a symbol of prosperity of the city, emerged from a reclamation crisis and has become a must-visit scenic spot today. Along the canal, facilities perfectly suited for MICE events, including hotels overlooking the canal and restaurants repurposed from old warehouses, are located. The canal also offers opportunities for outdoor activities, including 40-minute-long cruising trips.

The Former Mitsui Bank Otaru Branch (Otaru Art Base)

Ironai Bank Street

Ironai Bank Street was home to branches of major financial institutions and trading companies in Hokkaido and elsewhere, and those buildings created a fascinating sight. The Bank of Japan Otaru Branch building was designed by Dr. Kingo Tatsuno, the well-known architect of the red-brick Tokyo Station, and his pupil, and now serves as the Bank of Japan Otaru Museum. The Former Mitsui Bank Otaru Branch, popular for its Renaissance-style building with stone arches, is among buildings forming the Otaru Art Base and is available for MICE banquets.

Unique venues

Kitamae-bune merchant ships (Japan Heritage)

Otaru was among the ports where kitamae-bune merchant ships connecting Hokkaido with the Tohoku and Hokuriku regions on mainland Japan called. The Former Kitahama District Warehouses, built in the 20s and 30s of the Meiji era (around the end of the 19th century), convey the history of those merchant ships. Among the former warehouses, the Former Otaru Warehouse houses Otaru Museum Annex (known today as the Otaru Museum of History and Nature) and the Canal Plaza (Otaru International Information Center), and the Former Shibusawa Warehouse is used as the Otaru Gold Stone Live Theater, which rents its hall for various events.

Nikka Whisky Yoichi Distillery

The founder of Nikka Whisky, Masataka Taketsugu dedicated his whole life to making genuine whisky in Japan. This distillery offers a free 40-minute guided tour, where one can learn about this man's passion as well as the process of whisky making. After the tour there is also time for tasting.

Wineries in Yoichi Town

Yoichi Town, a major fruit producer in Hokkaido, also has a thriving wine industry. Home to 11 wineries, Yoichi was designated the Northern Fruit Kingdom Yoichi Wine Special District based on Japan's Act on Special Districts for Structural Reform. A wine tourism project was launched in Yoichi together with the neighboring town of Niki with the aim of establishing a major wine producing area in these towns and their environs.

Tan-Tetsu-Ko

(Coal, Steel, Railways, and Ports) (Japan Heritage)

Following the development of coal mines in the Sorachi region, a railway was built between Horonai (part of the present-day Mikasa City) and Otaru in 1882 to transport the coal. The railway was later extended to Muroran, which led to a flourishing steelmaking industry. In this way, coal mines in the Sorachi region, ironworks and steel mills in Muroran, and the port of Otaru laid the foundation for industrial modernization (known as Tan-Tetsu-Ko (Coal, Steel, Railways, and Ports) on the Japan Heritage List). You can learn about the story of Tan-Tetsu-Ko, which brought prosperity to Otaru, at the guide exhibition in the Otaru Museum and at the Former Temiya Railway Facilities and the Site of the Former Temiya Railway, among other places.
